We are eager to assist you as you apply for a Gilman Scholarship. The process is relatively simple and submitting a well-thought out and well-written proposal is essential. The deadlines are normally in early March for summer and fall study abroad and in early October for spring study abroad programs. Make an appointment with an adviser as you begin the application process.

Here are some helpful tips:
- The Gilman program offers helpful webinars for students; check their website under “multimedia” for dates.

- You must indicate the name of a study abroad adviser who will certify your application. Therefore, we strongly urge you to meet with an adviser well in advance of the application deadline. This will give you an opportunity to make sure that you understand the application process and to discuss possible Follow-On Projects. Once you have submitted your application, you cannot make any changes.

- If you’re participating in a UR-affiliated study abroad program, your estimated costs will be based on UR tuition and housing costs, not on the program’s costs.

- You must indicate the name of your Financial Aid Counselor who will certify your application. Meet with him or her before submitting your Gilman application. It is important that you understand how study abroad and an outside scholarship may affect your financial aid package.

- The Follow-On Project should be designed to promote study abroad and the Gilman program to people on our campus and/or local community. Past projects have included visits to local elementary schools, ‘open mic’ nights on campus, programming to undergraduate department councils, and photographic exhibits. You can be creative! Examples are on the Gilman website.

- The description of your Follow-On Project should indicate that you have a specific project planned and have contacted those who will be involved. In other words, writing that you’re going to help the Center for Study Abroad is insufficient. Writing that you’re going to maintain a bulletin board of study abroad scholarships and hold scholarship information meetings in cooperation with the Center for Study Abroad is more definite.

- Write clearly and concisely; follow the essay guidelines closely. Gilman program reviewers read hundreds of applications and writing an excellent essay will make the difference between receiving and not receiving an award.

- Before submitting your online application, bring a draft of your essays to the College Writing, Speaking and Argument Program in Rush Rhees G-121. The advisers in the Center for Study Abroad will also be happy to review your drafts. Helpful essay writing tips can also be found here: http://www.rochester.edu/college/studentfellowships/essays/index.html

Do not wait until the last minute to request your official transcript; normal turnaround time is three to five days.

The Center for Study Abroad and Interdepartmental Programs
Dewey Hall 2-161
585-275-7532
Email: www.rochester.edu/College/abroad/