

WHAT I WISH I KNEW WHEN I WAS 20

A CRASH COURSE ON MAKING YOUR PLACE IN THE WORLD

TINA SEELIG

- Executive Director, Stanford Technology Ventures Program, Stanford University
- B.A., Neuroscience, University of Rochester and Ph.D., Neuroscience, Stanford University
- 2009 Recipient of the National Academy of Engineering's Bernard M. Gordon Prize for Innovation in Engineering and Technology Education

TUESDAY, MARCH 17, 2009
4:30 P.M. IN GLEASON HALL 318/418
FOLLOWED BY A RECEPTION IN THE ROTUNDA

Sponsored by the University of Rochester Center for Entrepreneurship

Dr. Tina Seelig is the Executive Director for the Stanford Technology Ventures Program, the entrepreneurship center at Stanford University's School of Engineering. She teaches courses on creativity, innovation, and entrepreneurship. Tina earned her Ph.D. from Stanford University Medical School in 1985 where she studied Neuroscience. She has worked as a management consultant for Booz, Allen, and Hamilton, as a multimedia producer at Compaq Computer Corporation, and was the founder of a multimedia company called BookBrowser. Tina has also written 15 popular science books and educational games. Her books include The Epicurean Laboratory and Incredible Edible Science, published by Scientific American; and a series of twelve games called Games for Your Brain, published by Chronicle Books. Her newest book, to be released by HarperCollins this spring, is titled What I Wish I Knew When I Was 20: A Crash Course on Making Your Place in the World.