

FACULTY BENEFITS COMMITTEE CHARGE

The role of the Faculty Benefits Committee is to work closely with the administration to monitor the state of the benefits package available to faculty and to communicate with faculty about these benefits. The committee's work will address the three main parts of the faculty benefits package — health care, tuition and retirement — and will seek to ensure that these are comprehensive and competitive. Because the health care benefit may be changed annually, the committee should meet with the administration to review prospective changes for the following year. The committee should also review tuition and retirement benefits on an annual basis. The committee will seek to have the relevant representatives from the benefits office and the administration present at their meetings. The committee will report the outcome of these meetings to the Faculty Senate and its Executive Committee.
