1942 Donald Hodgman notes the passing of John Kennell ‘44, ’46M (MD) last August, which was reported in the New York Times in September. A neonatologist at University Hospital in Cleveland and a professor of pediatric medicine at Case Western Reserve University, John was the coauthor of the book Maternal–Infant Bonding (1976), widely credited with eliminating the then widespread practice in hospitals of separating mothers from their newborn infants for several hours following delivery. Donald writes: “John was a member of Alpha Delta Phi, as was I. In Cambridge, when my two-year-old daughter, Deborah, swallowed a penny, which stuck in her throat, John, then a young resident at Boston Children’s Hospital, removed it.”

1943 John Cranch died in July. His daughter-in-law, Nancy Cranch, writes: “The U of R was a huge part of his life. He was a swimmer and was inducted into the Athletics Hall of Fame a few years ago, something he was very proud of. He passed away just six days shy of his 91st birthday, after being at Blossom Road Nursing Home for three years. He donated his body to the School of Medicine and Dentistry, again being a proud alumnus!”

1944 John Kennell ’46M (MD) (see ’42).

1956 Don Schaet sends an update. Since just before his retirement in 2000, he’s been an avid cyclist. In 1999, as part of the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society Team-in-Training program, he completed the Santa Fe Century 100-mile ride. Now, after having raised almost $200,000 for the organization, he’s training for his 41st and final fundraising ride, a 100-mile ride in the mountains around Lake Tahoe in June. He has a website, http://tinyURL.com/donschaetforLLS, on which he’s collecting sponsors. He writes that he’s participated in many rides over the years as “part of a personal quest to pedal a 100-mile ride in all 50 states.” His “especially memorable rides” include “Montana along the Yellowstone River, crossing over the Mississippi River into Missouri, dodging flood waters in Nebraska, Lance Armstrong’s Ride for the Roses in Texas, West Virginia (broken pedal at 85 miles),...”
Illinois (nasty dog bite), Indiana on Old Route 66, Utah in February, Colorado’s wind farms, Oregon’s headwinds on a 20-mile incline, Hawaii, where I was stationed for three years as a Marine, and Pennsylvania through the Gettysburg Battlefield. However, Alaska was tops. Most people think of it as the 49th state, but for me it is the 50th. Quest completed!”

1957 Bill Anderson writes: “This year, for our annual mini-reunion, the ’57 Theta Chi group from U of R spent a week in Williamsburg, Va. The group was smaller this year due to illnesses and traveling difficulties. Our official dinner took place in the King’s Arm Tavern on Duke of Gloucester Street across from the famous Raleigh Tavern seen in the background of our photo. We’ve met annually since our 50th class reunion in 2007.” From left to right are Mark Sharnoff, Garrett Smith, and Bill.

1963 Dorothea de Zafra Atwell has received a Distinguished Worldwide Humanitarian Award from Worldwide Who’s Who. The award recognizes “philanthropic efforts and notable accomplishments.” Dorothea is a retired senior program analyst at the Department of Health and Human Services. She dedicates her time to eldercare advocacy, efforts to change social stereotypes about aging, as well as other civic initiatives.

1967 Patrick Duffeler, founder of Williamsburg Winery near Williamsburg, Va., has retired as chief executive officer. He’ll replace chairman of the board of the winery, which celebrated its 25th harvest in 2012. The new chief executive officer is Patrick’s son, Patrick Duffeler II, who has worked at the winery since he was a student at the College of William and Mary and most recently served as chief operating officer. . . . Larry Gardner writes that his daughter, Julianne, graduated from Rutgers Pharmacy School as valedictorian last May. He adds: “Juli graduated summa cum laude with a BS in biology from West Virginia University in 2009, where she was also inducted into Phi Beta Kappa.”

1968 Chuck Smith writes that his one-act comedy, Polterguest, was produced last summer by three theaters in Maryland, West Virginia, and Virginia. In addition, his play The Old Dark Foreclosed House was performed in September in Sterling, Va., as part of a festival devoted to 10-minute, one-act plays.

1971 David Epstein ’72S (MBA) writes: “I’ve been retired from the Naval Reserve and Government Accountability Office for years. My wife, Wendy, and I recently took an even bigger step toward retirement. After 23 years as the owner of a storefront travel agency, we sold the small office building that housed the business, converted our employees to commissioned salespersons, and began operating the travel agency from home. We plan to gradually reduce our work hours, and celebrated this change with a trip to Cuba.” . . . Jerry Newman sends a photo of himself and his daughter, Aurora, Class of 2017, in front of Susan B. Anthony Halls on move-in day, 2013.

1974 Alison Greenspan (see ’09).

1975 Len Milling has been promoted to full professor of psychology at the University of Hartford. Len has been teaching at Hartford since 2000. . . . Ken Novak writes that he’s been named a principal at Sagence, a data and analytics consultancy in Chicago. “I lead a pro bono modeling effort for the City of Chicago in addition to working for Fortune 500 clients. I also occasionally perform marriages as an ethical humanist officiant.”

1977 Lee Greenberger has been named chief scientific officer of the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. He’s responsible for planning and executing the society’s research programs, including grant funding programs. Lee was previously an executive at Bristol-Myers Squibb. . . . Carol Needleman-Karr has written a book, As Birds Soar: One Family’s Journey Living with ADHD and Autism Spectrum (Smashwords), under the pen name B. Suzanne. . . . Harold Paz ’82M (MD) has been elected chair of the board of directors of the Association of Academic Health Centers. Harold is the chief executive officer of Penn State’s medical center and health system, the senior vice president for health affairs, and dean of Penn State’s medical school.

1978 Jane Dubin ’79 (MS) writes that she’s producing the Tony Award–winning play Peter and the Starecatcher. Jane is the president of the theatrical production and management company Double Play Connections. . . . Ned Ginsburg writes that he’s

DEAN’S MEDAL

Ed Hajim ’58, chairman of the University’s Board of Trustees, received the Dean’s Medal at a presentation in New York City in November. During a nearly 60-year connection to the University, Hajim has volunteered in a number of roles as a student, alumnus, and advisor. As a trustee since 1988, Hajim has chaired the board’s Investment Committee, and he has served on the Health Affairs, Compliance and Compensation, Financial Planning, and Strategic Planning committees. Appointed chairman of the board in 2008, he serves as Executive Committee chair of The Mellora Challenge: The Campaign for the University of Rochester. The Edmund A. Hajim School of Engineering & Applied Sciences was named in his honor in 2009 in recognition of his 2008 gift commitment of $30 million—the largest single gift commitment in University history. A significant portion of this commitment was designated for scholarship support for engineering students.

JOHN N. WILDER AWARD

Mark Goldstein ’78, president and chief operating officer of Actuant Corporation, received the Wilder Award at a ceremony in Chicago in October. After joining the diversified industrial company in 2001, Goldstein was named COO in 2007 with a scheduled advance to CEO in January 2014. He also serves on the board of directors of Pall Corporation. Actively involved in the placement of Rochester students, Goldstein has worked with the career centers of both the College and the Simon Business School to help graduates begin careers at Actuant. With his wife, Jill Goldstein ’79N, he has established the Mark and Jill Goldstein Endowed Scholarship in support of Rochester students who are the first in their families to pursue a college education.

Mark Goldstein ’78 was recognized with the John N. Wilder Award.

been a composer and orchestrator in New York City since 1984. He’s working on several musicals, including Hobberdy Dick and They Chose Me, as well as a film score for Same Difference. He adds: “My wife is the visual artist Jill Slaymaker, and our son, Alex, is attending LaGuardia High School as a freshman in vocal music.” . . . Mark Perliberg has been named chairman of the National Association of Professional Employer Organizations. Mark is the president and chief executive officer of Oasis Outsourcing in West Palm Beach, Fla.

1979 Mark Bergman writes that he’s relocated to Saratoga Springs, N.Y. He’s an associate broker with Select Sotheby’s International Realty, specializing in luxury properties in the Albany and Lake George regions, as well as the southern Adirondacks. He’s also president of the Warren County Multiple Listing Service and Adirondack region vice president of the New York State Association of Realtors.

. . . Valerie Ann Leeds, an independent curator, produced Southwestern Allure: The Art of the Santa Fe Colony, a book accompanying the Boca Raton Museum of Art’s fall 2013 exhibit of the same title. The exhibit, on which Leeds consulted, will travel in 2014 to Orlando and to Santa Fe.

1980 David Higgins ’87 (PhD) (see ’80 Eastman).

1982 Paul Koch, dean of physical and biological sciences and professor of earth and planetary sciences at the University of California, Santa Cruz, has been elected as a fellow of the California Academy of Sciences. Paul’s research is focused on the effects of ecology on the evolution of vertebrates, and has consisted of fieldwork in North and South America, Asia, Africa, and Antarctica.

1983 David Duryea has been named commander of the Naval Undersea Warfare Center. Located in Newport, R.I., the center is the major research, development, test, and evaluation site for the Navy’s submarine warfare systems. Prior to his appointment as commander, David, a rear admiral, was the deputy commander for undersea warfare at the Naval Sea Systems Command in Washington, D.C.

1984 Remy Arteaga, director of the Deming Center for Entrepreneurship at the University of Colorado’s business school, has coauthored Pivot: How Entrepreneurs Adapt and Change Course to Find Ultimate Success (Wiley).

1985 Hal Johnson has been named chief financial officer of Capstone Financial Group. Hal is a founding partner of the company, based in Irvine, Calif. He’s also the son of Hal Johnson ’52, a life trustee of the University.

1987 Jeffrey Kondziela has been named business development manager of the optical metrology products group at Bristol Instruments, located in Victor, N.Y.

1989 Keary Howard is the winner of the 2013 President’s Award for Excellence in Teaching at SUNY Fredonia. Keary has been teaching mathematics education at the school since 2000.

1992 Jeff Reznick is coauthor of the article “Remains of War: Walt Whitman, Civil War Soldiers, and the Legacy of Medical Collections,” which appeared in the January 2012 issue of Museum Review. If you have an announcement you’d like to share with your fellow alumni, please send or e-mail your personal and professional news to Rochester Review. Graduate
ARTS, SCIENCES & ENGINEERING
1950 Alice Denham (MA) has written a book, Secrets of San Miguel (Madeira Press).

1957 Walter Cooper (PhD) was awarded the Rochester Area Community Foundation’s highest honor for philanthropy, the Joe U. Posner Founders Award, in September. The first African American to receive a doctorate in chemistry from the University, Walter began his career as a research scientist at Eastman Kodak, working his way up to manager of research innovation and obtaining multiple patents in polymerization during his three decades with the company. An activist during the civil rights movement in the 1960s, Walter became associate director of Action for a Better Community, was a founding member of the Urban League of Rochester, and served on the New York State Advisory Committee of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission. In later years, he helped found the city of Rochester’s urban-suburban transfer program and served as a New York State regent. In 2008, the University awarded him the Frederick Douglass Medal. He continues to work with the regents, advocating for educational rights for the children of migrant workers.

1969 Bobby Mills (MA) has written Corporate Christianity: How Double-Minded Pastors Are...
Hijacking Christianity (Morgan James Publishing).

1971 Bradley Paxton (PhD) has written Pictures, Pop Bottles, and Pills: Kodak Electronic Technology That Made a Better World, But Didn't Save the Day (Fossil Press). Bradley is CEO of ADI, a Rochester-based developer of quality management systems.

1975 Stanley Mainzer (PhD) (see ’09 College).

1978 Rosalyn Engelman (MS), a fine artist in New York City, was commissioned for a painting to be installed in Frank Lloyd Wright’s 1952 Brandes House in Sammamish, Wash. Rosalyn studied Japanese art and art history at Rochester and crafted her painting in context with the Brandes House’s Japanese-inspired interior design. She unveiled the work at a reception held at her studio in October.

1979 Jane Dubin (MS) (see ’78 College).

1987 David Higgins (PhD) (see ’80 Eastman).

1990 Richard Kronick (PhD) has been named director of the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Eastman School of Music

1957 Sydney Hodkinson ’58 (MM) has released two recordings this year. Shifting Treks (Navona Records) includes three of his orchestral works: Potpourri: 11 Very Short Pieces, Epitaphion, and Piano Concerto No. 1: A Shifting Trek. Eastman professor and pianist Barry Snyder ’66, ’67 (MM) performs with the St. Petersburg State Symphony Orchestra on the recording. Woodwind Odyssey (Clear Note) marks the premiere recording of Sydney’s wind works. Veritate Winds, the resident faculty woodwind ensemble at Stetson University, where Sydney is the Almand Chair of Composition, performed on the recording.

2006 Barry Snyder ’68 (MM) (see ’57).

2008 David Scott Allen ’81 (MM) writes: “Greetings from Tucson to the land of the Dandelions and Yellowjackets! I’m happy to announce my marriage to Mark Sammons, my partner of 18 years. The wedding took place in the garden of Rochester classmate David Higgins ’80RC, ’87 (PhD) and his husband, David Miles, in San Diego, Calif., in July.” David adds that he’s director of development for the University of Arizona Honors College.

2008 Greg Danner (MA) (see ’68). . . . Dan Locklair (DMA) was featured on American Public Media’s Pipedreams radio program in September.

2009 Mainzer and Sullivant

2009 Matt Blatt (DMA) has been named director of the American Prize conducting competition.

2010 David Brickman writes that he’s the co-owner of Bodymind Float Center, a floatation therapy sensory deprivation tank in Rochester. David and his wife, Pattie Sunwoo, started the floatation center after David returned from his first experience with floatation therapy in Portland, Ore., in 2012. The light- and sound-proof tank consists of pharmaceutical-grade Epsom salt dissolved in warm water to produce a dense solution that enables the body to float.

2011 Carl Atkins (DMA) (see ’84).

2012 Jonathan Kruger (DMA) and Carl Atkins ’82 (DMA) perform with the New Energy Jazz Orchestra, a group they founded in 2006 to create a Rochester-based ensemble to perform new compositions as well as classics. “The band performs all original compositions and arrangements and features numerous Eastman graduates including David Gibson ’96 (MM),” Jonathan writes. The group has self-published two CDs: Sands of Time (2008) and Celestial Boogie (2011). Jonathan and Carl both teach at the Rochester Institute of Technology. Jonathan is director of performing arts in the performing arts and visual culture department, and Carl is director of the music program in the department of fine arts.

2013 Jazz composer Maria Schneider (MM) has released a classical crossover recording, Winter Morning Walks (Maria Schneider), with soprano Dawn Upshaw and the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra.

2013 Chris McCormick (MM) (see ‘68).

2013 Linda Neuberger Chatterton writes that she performed solo recitals at London’s St. Martin-in-the-Fields and Dublin’s National Concert Hall. She also completed a nine-state tour with Trio Matisse, an ensemble for flute, cello, and harp, and performed a Mozart concerto in Moscow with the State Hermitage Chamber Orchestra.

2013 Peggy Dettwiler (DMA), professor of music and director of choral activities at Mansfield University, won second place in the choral division of the American Prize conducting competition.

2013 Daniel Ihasz (MM), a professor of music at SUNY Fredonia, has won a Chancellor’s Award for Excellence in Teaching. The award recognizes outstanding teaching and service in the State University of New York system. Daniel is a nationally recognized expert in voice science who has seen almost 170 voice majors graduate during the years he has served as chair or cochair of Fredonia’s voice area. He’s organized events to raise money for voice scholarships and served in a leadership role in the National Association of Teachers of Singing.
CHANCE ENCOUNTERS

Musical Meet-Up

Boston-area alumni find each other while working (and playing) together in the Cambridge Symphony Orchestra.

If you’ve moved away from Rochester and live in a sizeable metro area, maybe you’ve met and even befriended a fellow Rochester alumnus or two. Someone you never knew as a student. Someone who may have attended many years before or after you did.

That’s the kind of chance encounter that happened to Lydia Beall ‘02, Abe Dewing ’93, and Kim Etingoff ’10. Living in the Boston area, they met as members of the all-volunteer Cambridge Symphony Orchestra.

Abe, who oversees digital advertising for the Boston Herald, joined the orchestra in 1994. A violinist, he’d been in the University symphony and chamber orchestras at Rochester. “I was able to enjoy music at my own pace. It wasn’t, ‘Be an Eastman student or nothing,’” he says. “I learned, ‘Hey, you know what? Maybe a community orchestra would be an option for me.’”

He not only joined the Cambridge Symphony, but became a board member and took charge of the group’s marketing. He started an arts blog at the Boston Herald, for which he writes a weekly installment about the symphony.

Lydia, also a violinist, runs an education program at the Boston Museum of Science. A chemical engineering major, she didn’t join any music groups while at Rochester. “I thought about it,” she says. “But I thought it might be too much while I was in college.”

As a working professional, she decided she had the time and will to pursue her music again. She’d been a friend of the orchestra on Facebook and decided to join. She met Abe when she approached him about arranging for the orchestra to perform at the museum as part of a program on the science of sound.

“It’s a pretty rigorous orchestra environment, but casual enough that people who have full time jobs can do it simply because they love it,” she says. She adds that the group is performing a lot of 20th-century music, “which is unusual.”

Kim, a violist who’s working toward a master’s degree in urban and environmental policy and planning at Tufts, says, “I was a part of both the chamber orchestra and the symphony orchestras at Rochester, so I wanted to keep that tradition going in my life.” The Cambridge Symphony Orchestra, she says, “was nearby, community based, and had a great repertoire, so that’s the orchestra I gravitated toward.” She met Abe shortly after she joined, who in turn introduced her to Lydia.

“It’s a community-within-a-community that could expand. “I actually know of two more Rochester alums who just moved to Boston and are interested in joining the CSO as well,” Kim says. “So our numbers might keep growing!”

Tatiana Tchekina: ‘World-Class Musician’

Since 1967, the partner-duo of pianist Tatiana Tchekina and violinist Oleh Krysa made more than 20 recordings together and traveled around the globe performing solo and chamber music recitals. Their partnership came to an end in December, when Tchekina, 69, died in an automobile accident outside Rochester.

An assistant professor of accompanying at the Eastman School, Tchekina was “a world-class musician” and “a valued member of our faculty who influenced the lives of the many students with whom she collaborated on performances and competitions,” said Dean Jamal Rossi.

Born in Moscow, Tchekina was educated at the Moscow and Kiev Conservatories and joined the Eastman faculty in 2002. She and Krysa celebrated contemporary music, recording works by Russian composer Alfred Schnittke, Ukrainian composers Boris Lyatoshynsky and Myroslav Skoryk, and others. Their global tours occasionally included performances with their partners in Russia, Italy, and Japan.

“Professor Tchekina was a great artist,” said Eastman professor of violin Federico Agostini. “With her immense background and experience she was also an extraordinary collaborative pianist in our school. Some of the best violin students we have here at Eastman were blessed by having the great privilege to perform with her. She will be missed by all of us as a wonderful friend and as a great musician.”
