What do people expect of you? If you failed in school, would that make you exactly what they’d thought you were?

Have you joined a fraternity or sorority? Why is being part of that group better than being part of any other group?

Your star football player, the jock, wants to be taken seriously as a physicist. What now with the stereotypes?

What does racial and ethnic bias look like in college? How exactly we can have each other’s backs? See Student Health 101, February 2017.

Source: Keith Jones, advocate for access and inclusion related to race and disability, Boston, Massachusetts

Are you ready for some thought experiments?

Find us: University of Rochester Student Health 101

#spreadthehealth

START READING TODAY

TEXT ROCHESTER TO 40691