What kind of a roommate are you? FIND OUT HERE

SCENARIO Your roommate leaps out of bed at dawn and opens the curtains. When you ask her to leave them closed until 9:00, she points out that actually they are her curtains. How do you handle it?

A Ignore her the first week; maybe this is an adjustment period. Finally, text her from under your comforter: “srsly?? u r the worst”

B Tonight, get back after she’s gone to sleep, crash into the furniture, and watch the Kardashians.

C Search online for “roommate agreement,” sit down with her and work out the terms, and invest a few dollars in an eye mask.

WHAT YOUR RESPONSE SAYS ABOUT YOUR ROOMMATE SKILLS

A Well-intentioned roommate
Postponing awkward conversations is understandable but rarely ends sweetly. BTW, taking your phone to bed is another way to wreck your sleep.

B Roommate with room to grow
Hmm. Maybe try to remember why you came to college.

C Fully-evolved roommate
Your thoughtfulness and good faith are an inspiration to us all. Come live with us.

For more roommate scenarios and ways to handle them (or not), see Student Health 101, September 2016.