

GEORGE EASTMAN CIRCLE

Members of the George Eastman Circle, the University's leadership annual giving society, stand at the forefront of a movement that will help provide an even greater service to the world.

George Eastman understood that the world's great research universities are unique. They are the only institutions that can contribute to the greater good of society, across the broadest range of subjects, in perpetuity.

Early in the 20th century, George Eastman and a fellow group of leaders recognized the important ways that the University of Rochester could contribute toward the greater good. Their vision, leadership, and philanthropic support were instrumental in transforming the University of Rochester into one of the world's finest research universities. That support spanned multiple disciplines and, today, the impact George Eastman made is seen throughout the University community and the world.
