Alumni Gazette

Homage to Obsolescence

The eerie and refined images of Sam Sadtler ’12, you could say, honor the dead. A mechanical engineer and an artist who works in the media of photography, sculpture, and video, Sadtler explores the world of outmoded and discarded household electronics.

“I’m interested in objects that were created and almost immediately were obsolete,” he says. “I want to give these objects a presentation in a way that they never really had, as a way to honor them. It sounds a little strange, but I’m in many ways personifying these objects. What is the send-off that something that we created and tossed away almost immediately deserves? And how do we need to document them in order for them to be remembered?”

From 2012 to 2014, a series of photographs by Sadtler called ‘Automation Abomination’ traveled the United States. This year, two images from the series, including this one—a 29” x 20” digital scan called “The Elegance of a Knife”—have been on display in the home of Greta Holtz, U.S. ambassador to Oman, as part of the Art in Embassies program, sponsored by the State Department.

Sadler is a graduate student in the interactive telecommunications program at NYU’s Tisch School of the Arts.

—Karen McCally ’02 (PHD)
Pitbull(’s) Lawyer

With multimillionaire international pop superstar Pitbull as a client, Leslie Zigel ’85 travels a couple times a year on the musician’s private jet.

“There’s music, vodka, and great conversations about life and business,” says Zigel, named last year by Billboard Magazine as one of the top music lawyers in the United States.

The jazz bass player-turned-lawyer is principal of Ziglaw, one of the country’s premier multimedia entertainment law practices. He started the Miami-based firm—specializing in talent and endorsement deal negotiations, music publishing, film and television production counsel, and other areas—in 2006.

“I view my job in negotiating deals as very analogous to jazz improvisation,” he says. “You have rules, but there’s a lot of flexibility within those rules as to how you get to the end result.”

At Rochester, Zigel played bass in the River Campus Jazz Ensemble, was a jazz deejay for three years at WRUR, and served briefly as business manager of the Eastman Jazz Ensemble.

He designed his own interdisciplinary major on the sociological study of the music industry, and wrote an honors thesis exploring bebop’s revolutionary impact on the music scene as it fought racism during the 1940s and 1950s.

Zigel thought of the major his sophomore year, after deciding he wanted to become a jazz festival producer and work for Newport Jazz Festival founder George Wein. He secured an internship with Wein’s company three months after graduation, then got hired and ran numerous festivals for six years before heading to law school.

Although rubbing elbows with celebrities is an exciting part of his job, Zigel says it’s only a small part of being an entertainment lawyer.

“People think that being an entertainment lawyer is all glamour, all the time. Yes, I’ve gotten to be in jets and party and go backstage, but it’s a lot of very, very hard work, and it takes a lot of thoughtfulness to do it well.”

For those embarking on careers in the arts or entertainment industries, Zigel offers some tips that apply to a broad range of roles:

Do your research. When interviewing to work for BMG, one of the world’s largest music publishers, Zigel studied transcripts from Senate testimony his interviewer had given years before on record industry copyrights. “I was able to speak with him intelligently about that,” he recalls. “Researching the person you’re meeting with shows you care and are willing to go the extra mile to get the job done.”

Be honorable. If Zigel notices an opposing lawyer’s mistake in a document—a mistake in favor of Zigel’s client—he will phone the lawyer to request a correction. As his mother used to say, and as he tells his two sons, ages 16 and 12: “The best thing about telling the truth is you never have to remember what you said.”

Know what you want, then go out there and do it. Many people, especially new artists, worry too much about photo shoots and other things that have little effect on overall success. Instead, focus on the work. For example, “I tell musicians to get a gig, perform, and get fans one by one,” he says. “The rest will come.”

Have fun. Work feels like play for Zigel. “Be diligent and focused, but smile a lot,” he says. “That infectious energy goes a long way in building long-lasting professional and personal relationships.”

—ROBIN L. FLANIGAN

RULES OF LAW . . . AND JAZZ: “I view my job in negotiating deals as very analogous to jazz improvisation,” says Zigel, a one-time jazz musician who is now a leading entertainment lawyer.
HONORS & AWARDS
Alumni, Guests Honored at Commencement

The University recognized alumni, faculty, and special guests at this spring’s commencement ceremonies. Recognized for their teaching, scholarship, achievements, and service were:

ARTS, SCIENCES & ENGINEERING

G. GRAYDON CURTIS ’58 AND JANE W. CURTIS AWARD FOR NONTENURED FACULTY TEACHING EXCELLENCE
Nickolas (Nick) Vamivakas, assistant professor of quantum optics and quantum physics

EDWARD PECK CURTIS AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE IN UNDERGRADUATE TEACHING
William FitzPatrick, the Gideon Webster Burbank Professor of Intellectual and Moral Philosophy

HONORARY DOCTOR OF HUMANE LETTERS
Deborah Bial, founder and president of the Posse Foundation

HONORARY DOCTOR OF LAWS
Robert Duffy, president and chief executive officer of the Rochester Business Alliance

HONORARY DOCTOR OF SCIENCE
Richard Rashid ’80 (PhD), chief technology officer of Microsoft’s Applications and Services Division

DOCTORAL CEREMONY

WILLIAM H. RIKER UNIVERSITY AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE IN GRADUATE TEACHING
Randall Stone, professor of political science

LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT IN GRADUATE EDUCATION
Ralph Locke, professor of musicology at the Eastman School of Music

ROCHESTER DISTINGUISHED SCHOLAR MEDAL
Stephen Fantone ’79 (PhD), president and founder of Optikos Corporation

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE AND DENTISTRY

HONORARY DOCTOR OF SCIENCE
Porter Anderson, professor emeritus of pediatrics at the School of Medicine and Dentistry

CHARLES FORCE HUTCHISON AND MARJORIE SMITH HUTCHISON MEDAL
Harvey Alter ’56, ’60M (MD), a distinguished National Institutes of Health investigator

Joseph Cunningham ’67 (MA), principal attorney for Cunningham & Associates

EASTMAN MEDAL
E. Philip Saunders, entrepreneur and business leader

Honorands, guests, and faculty members are shown in the following images.