

LiDA Colloquium Series

How Are Disruptive Technologies Affecting Higher Education?

Thursday, October 3, 3:00-4:30 pm in LeChase 215

The growth of online education and MOOCs led to dire predictions for traditional higher education institutions. These predictions have not been realized – yet! Why? How are research universities responding to the threats and opportunities presented by disruptive technologies?

Join us for a conversation on this topic, to be started by a panel representing complementary disciplinary perspectives and areas of expertise:

Panelists:

Raffaella Borasi – Professor of Education and Director of the Center for Learning in the Digital Age, Warner School of Education, University of Rochester

Nathan Harris – Assistant Professor of Higher Education, Warner School of Education, University of Rochester

Richard DeMartino – Professor, Saunders College of Business, and Director of the Simone Center for Student Innovation and Entrepreneurship, Rochester Institute of Technology

Moderator:

Dave Miller, Associate Director, Center for Learning in the Digital Age

Reminder of forthcoming Fall 2019 LiDA Series events:

November 21: How Are Digital Technologies Redefining the Goals of K-16 Education?

